Straw Vote Shows Majority for League

The Janesville members of the National Economic league participated in the straw vote taken all over the country by that league on the league of nations. The national results show that three out of four men of the league are for the league of nations. The league's resolution was worded as follows: "Resolved, that the United States should ratify the treaty with Germany, including the league of nations' covenant, without complications, delaying, or invalidating reservations." A footnote explains that "this is not to be construed as excluding such interpretations of the treaty and covenant as may be thought necessary to clarify the American position, provided no danger is thereby created of delay or of furnishing ground for Germany, or other signatory to declare that the ratification by the United States is not complete and binding."

Out of a total of 555 votes, 519 members are recorded as favoring and 165 as opposing this resolution.

Not to Be Thought Of.

Jamie was asking his mother a lot of silly questions, such as, "Why are your eyes blue?" His mother said, "Why do you ask such silly questions when I am trying to read?" "Well," responded Jamie, "do you want your little boy to grow up without a vocabulary in his mind?"

U. S. COLONEL WEDS RED CROSS WORKER

Mrs. William Haywood.

New York society was especially interested in the recent wedding of Col. William Haywood of the 15th Infantry, the famous negro regiment, because his bride was none other than the well-known Mrs. Morton F. Plant, widow of the millionaire railroad and steamship man. Mrs. Haywood was an active Red Cross worker during the war.

YOUNG FOLKS PUT ON PROGRAM AT COUNTRY CLUB

A vaudeville and cabaret entertainment was given at the Country club, Tuesday evening, following the regular weekly dinner. It was one of the successful affairs of the season. Miss Esther Harris had charge of it. A pergola was erected at the west end of the club house. It was covered with vines, and hung with Japanese lanterns.

The first of the program was devoted to the movie actors. Miss Frances Jackson, was cast as stage manager, announced with handsomely illuminated signs the appearance of Miss Caroline Richardson as Sis Hopkins; Dorothy Korst as Nazimova; Maurice Walick as Charlie Chaplin; and Josephine Carle as Douglas Fairbanks. After the movies, a take-off on Woodlawn Bay, Delavan lake, was staged. The interior of the dance hall was reproduced. Tables and chairs were arranged, where soft drinks were served. Don Korst and Miss Harriet Carle were the proprietors.

Those who had reserved tables were called off, as they had ordered, and a flourishing business was carried on. A jazz orchestra occupied a part of the floor, and furnished the music. The musicians were Miss Virginia Parker, Sidney Bliss, Maurice Weirick, George Kalyvela and Glen Jackson. During the serving of refreshments, Little Miss Madge Little, danced in and out among the guests in an attractive manner. Sherwood Sheldon and Maurice Weirick put on a short golf sketch, which brought out much applause with their local hits. About 35 young people took part. It made a great hit and was enjoyed by a large audience.

Mrs. S. Parker gave the little introduction, telling of the program that had been prepared for the evening.

FAMOUS ROCK OF GIBRALTAR

Great Britain Has So Strongly Fortified It That It Is Rightly Considered Impregnable.

Since the day, more than 200 years ago, when the flag of Great Britain was flung out over Gibraltar, the strong fortress in the world, that country has won many triumphs in commerce and has become mistress of the sea.

The rock of Gibraltar is 1,400 feet high and across the narrow bay may be seen the coast of Africa only nine miles away. The rock is nearly three miles long and about half a mile broad. On the eastern side the cliff is so steep that nothing but a monkey can scale it, and there is a colony of monkeys living there, the only animals of their kind living wild in Europe.

The only possible approach to the rock is by land from the north, or from the sea on the western side. As viewed from the ocean the Rock of Gibraltar is impressive, strong, gloomy and forbidding. But flowers grow about the steep walls. The great Victoria batteries, occasionally fired, are screened and sheltered by acacia blossoms. Here are concealed 100-ton guns, sinister, threatening. The north and southwest sides are honeycombed by fortifications. There is a town and harbor on the west, protected by batteries and forts rising from the base to the summit of the rock. Modern guns of the most formidable pattern frown from the heights. The town is inhabited by a British colony of about 25,000 people. Everything is under strict military regulation.

JEWS NOT EASILY CONVERTED

Sermon to Which They Were Annually Forced to Listen Failed of Its Purpose.

In John Evelyn's diary of January 7, 1645, there is a notation of a peculiar ceremony which seems to have been of annual occurrence at Rome. It was a sermon preached to a compulsory congregation of Jews, with a view to their conversion. Mr. Evelyn says "they are constrained to sit till the hour is done, but it is with so much malice in their countenances, spitting, humming, coughing and motion, that it is almost impossible they should hear a word from the preacher. A conversion is very rare."

The Zionist movement, which has gone on for years and received a new impetus by the changes made in mid-Europe as a result of the world war, was outlined in a poem written by Robert Browning during his residence in Italy, probably about the middle of the nineteenth century. He calls it "Holy Cross Day."

"Father of the Short Story."

The father of the short story was Giovanni Boccaccio, an Italian novelist and poet, who died at Certaldo 543 years ago. His "Decameron," a collection of short tales, each complete in itself, practically marked the beginning of the short story. Boccaccio was born about 1313, and his words reflect the immoral or immoral spirit of the times in which he lived, and a majority of his tales are of a character which would now land the author in jail, if he could find a publisher to offer his works for sale. Despite their immorality—possibly because of it—the "Decameron" has been translated into nearly every language and is still widely read. Literary critics ranked the work as masterpiece. Balzac and many other modern authors have found inspiration in the works of the celebrated Italian. His faults were those of that time—and for the matter of that, of a much later time, for as recently as a century ago stories were told in mixed company which would now scarcely be tolerated by a "stag party."

Helpful Sympathy.

She was slowly recovering from a long illness, but still too weak for the trip downtown to a hairdresser for the much-needed shampoo. At last a maid was found who would come to the house. During the drying process she made the startling discovery of the first gray hairs. The convalescent's grief was so intense that the maid, striving to comfort, said: "Law, lady, what if you had to wear one of them transmissions on your head!"

WOMAN, 70, DRIVES FROM PACIFIC TO WASHINGTON, D. C.

Mrs. William Upton beside roadster which she drove.

Mrs. William Upton, seventy, recently arrived at Washington, D. C., from San Francisco. She made the trip alone, driving a light auto the entire distance. She took part in the celebration staged for Abraham Lincoln soon after his inauguration from the same store in Illinois at which the Lincoln traded.

FINAL CONCERT OF YEAR THURSDAY NIGHT

Weather permitting the last band concert of the season will be given by the Bower City band in the Court House park tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. Prof. W. T. Thiele, director, said today that the concert this season were far better attended than ever before.

Miss Thelma Ames will be the soloist. The program follows: "March, 'Vanguard of Democracy,' King; 'Vivente,' 'Triumph,' Hayel; song, 'Sand Dunes,' Gay; Thelma Ames; selection, 'Faisla Jingles of 1919,' Fels; overture, 'Spick and Span,' Jewell; selection, 'Determination,' Hayes; song, 'Alabama Lullaby,' DeVoll; Thelma Ames; overture, 'Fall of Jerich,' Maillochad; selection, 'Southern Memories,' Hecker; march, 'The Blue Star,' Allen; finale, 'Star Spangled Banner.'

Seek to Realize Ideals. The life that is a "comer" is charged with energy. The best plans in the world must be worked to make them productive. Life with ideals is something, but it is the ideals plus active application that brings the fruits. Many a fellow with small ability, but that ability consecrated to a definite purpose, rises to merited recognition in life. When today's efforts forecast tomorrow's activities there is a continuity that produces rounded character and symmetrical development.

How Mangrove "Travels."

Trees have many methods of traveling and one of the most unique of these is used by the mangrove tree which walks in water. It is not uncommon to see a mangrove standing knee-deep in the water, with numerous arms reaching downward from the upper limbs. As soon as these take root, a new tree is started; thus the mangrove is said to walk.

TAILORED COSTUME FOR BUSINESS GIRL

It is often necessary for the business woman to adopt a distinct tailored style and yet she does not want a suit which looks too mannish. Here is an exquisitely cut and fitted suit of a soft woolen material which does not wrinkle easily. It is smart and attractive and has a decidedly stylish air. The tailored blouse with its Roman stripes gives a bit of color to the costume and the plain banded sailor is in keeping with the rest of the outfit. She is perfectly groomed and ready for any occasion which the day may bring forth.

NEW AUSTRIA HAS LOST ITS PRIDE OF PRE-WAR EMPIRE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

St. Germain, Sept. 10.—Today's ceremony at St. Germain brings to a close three months of negotiations between the Austrian republic and the allied draft of the cabinet. An incomplete and associated portions of peace was handed the Austrian delegates June 3, the reserved sections relating to the military, financial reparations and some boundary features. The treaty between China which did not sign the treaty with Germany because of the inclusion in that convention of the section giving to Japan the German rights and concessions in the province of Shantung, announced last week she would sign the treaty with Austria so that she would be able to join the league of nations.

The Austrian republic, representatives of which signed the treaty today, is different from the proud Austro-Hungarian empire of 1914. The former provinces of Bohemia and Moravia and a part of the Duchy of Teschen now form the republic of Czechoslovakia. The remainder of Teschen and most of Galicia have been incorporated into Poland. The new Austrian republic takes certain sections in eastern Galicia and the former Austrian crown land of Bukovina. Hungary has separated from Austria along the historic boundary between those portions of the former empire but has herself lost parts of the province of Transylvania which have been awarded to Rumania.

On the other hand the provinces of Carinthia, Dalmatia, Caronlia, Croatia and Slavonia, Bosnia and Herzegovina as well as parts of Styria are formed in conjunction with Serbia along the new Jugo kingdom. Parts of Tyrol are taken over by Italy, the boundaries of which are also extended so as to include most of the Istrian peninsula and a strip along the western frontier of the province of Carinthia.

All therefore that remains of the former empire is what is known as German-Austria including upper and lower Austria and parts of Styria and Tyrol.

No Austria-Germany Union. Since the close of hostilities there has been a movement afoot by which Austria would be annexed by Germany. By one of the most important clauses of the treaty signed today this is forbidden.

Austria's army is reduced to 30,000 men on a purely voluntary basis. All her military establishments are cut down in a proportionate manner. The entire Austrian naval fleet is to be handed over to the allies.

The economic clauses and those relative to freedom of transit are similar to those of the German pact. Questions relative to the disposition of the city of Fiume are not settled, but Austria renounces in favor of the allied and associated powers all her rights and titles over territories formerly belonging to her, which, though outside the new frontiers of Austria have not at present been assigned to any state. She undertakes to accept any settlement made in regard to those territories.

Proper Acknowledgment. "You are what they call a self-made man."

"No," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "my wife and family helped, with advice and encouragement. I'm not self-made. I'm home-made."

The Cheney
Orchestral Chambers
A Distinct Contribution To Music

The fundamental acoustic principles of the pipe organ have been adapted to the phonograph in the Cheney Orchestral Chambers.

Those chambers in the organ pipes which have made the pipe organ so rich and full add their mellow sweetness to tones as the Cheney reproduces records.

It is a wonderful advance in the art of reproducing music. Connoisseurs assure us that the series of exclusive inventions embodied in the Cheney constitute the greatest improvement since phonographs were invented.

Surely they have placed the Cheney in a class apart with tones of unrivalled clarity and pureness.

Cheney Period Cabinets in regular and art models are masterpieces, the pride of the most talented furniture craftsmen in the country.

AUTHOR OF NEW RAILROAD PLAN

Glenn E. Plumb.

Glenn E. Plumb is author of the plan for government railroad ownership. It involves joint operation and control of the roads by the government and railway employees.

Should this plan be acted upon favorably by congress the U. S. government debt would be increased about twenty billion dollars.

GROCERIES TO CLOSE EVERY WEDNESDAY AT NOON DURING WINTER

Janesville's grocery stores are to be closed Wednesday afternoons throughout the year, effective immediately.

This decision was reached at a meeting of grocers and butchers held at the Chamber of Commerce last night under the direction of Alexander Jacobson, secretary of the commercial division.

Whether or not butcher shops will follow the example will be decided by owners within the next few days.

Believing that it was unjust to ask employees to put in as many hours each week as has been the custom in the past, a general time readjustment was worked out and was agreed to by all proprietors present at the meeting.

The new schedule calls for a 40-hour week, a program that will be welcomed by every grocery store employee in the city.

In order to hold down the number of hours to 40, it was decided to give employees 1 hour and 10 minutes for dinner daily instead of the usual hour, and to close Wednesday afternoon at noon.

The new schedule calls for a 40-hour week, a program that will be welcomed by every grocery store employee in the city.

For several years it has been the custom for grocery stores to close Wednesday afternoons during the summer months. The weekly half-holidays have become so popular with employees and employers that this was one of the deciding factors in arriving at the new order last night.

REV. MILLAR RETIRES AS M. E. OFFICIAL

Rev. Perry Millar has retired as superintendent of the Janesville district of the Methodist church, which district includes the Methodist churches in Rock, Walworth and Jefferson counties and parts of Dane, DeKalb and Jackson counties. He has held the office for six years.

At the Wisconsin conference of Methodists which has been in session since last year, Rev. F. J. Turner, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Beloit, was appointed to the superintendency. Mr. Turner and his family will move to Janesville within a short time.

Mr. Turner, during his two years in Beloit, has made a big place for himself in the community. He was a member of the members' forum of the Chamber of Commerce, a member of the governing committee of the Six O'clock club and a member of the case committee of the United Chautauque.

Mr. Turner is a alumnus of the University of Wisconsin and a member of the Beloit from Sheboygan. He has been a member of the Wisconsin conference for 14 years.

Rev. F. E. Lewis, Rev. Perry Millar and George Jacobs of this city attended the conference.

ATTEMPTED ROBBERY AT MIDNIGHT HOUR FOILED BY POLICE

What appeared to be an attempted robbery in the four-house of the Bennington and Lane bakery was nipped in the bud about midnight last night by the quick work of the police department.

First ward residents returning home about that hour were attracted by the curious actions of a young man who was sitting on the curb at No. 400 High street and the cue at No. 400.

A call was sent to the police station and in record time Officer Myers accompanied by Officer Charles Harmon. The young man, who was acting queer, made his escape before the officers arrived. The police were told that another man was seen loitering between the bakery and the adjacent apartment. The man was seen to get into a car and drive away.

It was thought that the man either tried to break open the door or was waiting for the owner to come out and then walk past him. The man was seen to get a few sacks of flour.

HOME COMING PLANS TO BE LAID FRIDAY

Definite plans for Janesville's great welcome home celebration in honor of her 1,600 service men, the date for which has been tentatively fixed for Wednesday, October 8, will be laid at a special meeting of the program committee to be held at the Chamber of Commerce, Friday evening.

Rev. R. G. Pierson, chairman, urges that every one of the 10 members of the committee be on hand ready to give advice and act upon ideas for the celebration.

The original program committee composed of Rev. Pierson, chairman, Miss Gertrude Cobb, Dr. W. H. McCullough, City Attorney Roger G. Cunningham has been enlarged by the addition of Mrs. Louis Levy, Miss Margaret Doty, George McKee, Joseph M. Connors, Arthur Baumann, Edmund J. Leary, and George Sherman as members.

The last two named men were chosen as the service men's representatives on the committee to give advice and act upon ideas for the celebration.

LOCAL TOBACCO FIRM IS SUED FOR $2,800

E. M. Haskins and Harold Schwartz, local tobacco dealers, are made defendants in a $2,800 damage suit, summons and complaint for which were filed in circuit court here today.

The plaintiff, Peder Olson, Vermont county tobacco grower, through his attorney, E. B. Graves, Sparta, alleges that he was forced to sell his tobacco at a loss after it had been refused by the local firm.

His complaint charges that he entered into a written contract with Haskins & Schwartz, August 31, last year, for the sale of his 14 acres of tobacco at the price of 35 cents per pound for wrappers and binders, and 15 cents per pound for fillers, and that the defendant paid $75 down to bind the contract.

When he sought to deliver to the buyers about August 1, this year, they refused to accept it, he states, making it necessary for him to go out in the open market and get the best price possible.

His crop amounted to 15,300 pounds of wrappers and binders, and 2,600 pounds of fillers, was sold for an amount $2,783 less than his contract.

Our Country's Birth.—Our country's independence dates from July 4, 1776, because the United States then declared its independence, and from that day on has maintained it.

Great Britain acknowledged the independence of the United States by a preliminary treaty of peace dated November 30, 1782, and by the final or definite treaty dated September 3, 1783. This treaty was ratified by the continental congress January 14, 1784.

REGAINS NET TITLE LOST 8 YEARS AGO

Mrs. George W. Wrightman.

The recent feat of Mrs. George W. Wrightman in winning the women's national golf championship will stand out as one of the greatest athletic feats of the year.

Mrs. Wrightman was Miss Hazel Hotchkiss before her marriage. As Miss Hotchkiss she held the title three consecutive years, losing it eight years ago.

Critics at the recent national tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket club say her playing was, if anything, superior to her old-time skill.

TREATY IS REPORTED TO SENATE WITH 45 AMENDMENTS

declared the report, "was impossible to those to whom was entrusted the performance of a solemn public duty."

Recalling the senate's responsibility as usual with the president's report, the committee experienced in getting the information on the treaty. Of the sum of information received in conference with President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, the report remarks:

"Public Knows What Happened." "The people themselves know how much information in regard to the peace treaty was received by the committee upon those two occasions."

While criticism for delay has been aimed at the foreign relations committee, the report points out no criticism has been taken by France, Japan or Italy. The argument that the treaty should be speedily ratified that trading with Germany might begin, the report dismisses as "rather faded."

The report declares the United States has been trading with Germany since the signing of the armistice in increasing volume.

The first amendment relates to the league. It is proposed so to amend the text as to secure for the United States a vote in the assembly of the league equal to that of any other power.

Transfer Shantung Rights. Amendments 39 to 44, inclusive, transfer to China the German lease and rights, if they exist, in the Chinese province of Shantung, which are given by the treaty to Japan.

The majority of the committee were not willing to have their votes recorded at any stage in the proceedings in favor of the consummation of what they consider a great wrong.

They cannot consent to taking the property of a faithful ally and handing it over to another ally in the name of a bargain made by other powers in secret treaty.

Amendment number two is simply to provide that where a member of the committee has self-interest in the dominions and colonies which are also members of the league, the exclusion of the deputations under the league rules shall cover the aggregate of the member of the league and its self-governing dominions and parts of empire combined if any one of them is involved in controversy.

The remaining amendments, with a single exception, may be treated as one, for the purpose of all is to relieve the United States from having representatives on the commission established by the league.

The exception is amendment 44, which provides that the United States shall have a member of the separation commission but that such member shall not be a member of the commission of the United States.

The committee proposes four reservations to be made a part of the ratification of ratification when it is offered. The committee reserves the right to offer reservations if they shall so determine. The four reservations now presented are as follows:

"The United States reserves to itself the unconditional right to withdraw from the league of nations upon the notice provided in article 1 of said treaty."

"The United States declines to assume, under the provisions of article ten or under any other article, an obligation to preserve the territorial or political independence of any other country or to interfere in controversies between other nations, members of the league or not, or to employ the military or naval force of the United States in such controversies, or to adopt economic measures, for the protection of any other country, whether a member of the league or not, against external aggression or for the purpose of coercing any other country, or for the purpose of intervention in the internal conflicts or in any other country, and no mandate shall be accepted by the United States under article 22, part 1, of the treaty of peace with Germany except by action of the congress of the United States."

Mets Objection.—This reservation is intended to meet the most vital objection to the league covenant as it stands. Under no circumstances must there be any legal or moral obligations on the United States to enter into war or to send its army and navy abroad without the unfettered consent of congress.

EIGHT-COLUMN PAPER APPEARS TOMORROW

The first edition of the Gazette's new eight-column paper will be published tomorrow. The change necessitates the use of a wider paper giving additional space for the carrying of the full Associated Press leased wire report together with a number of new features.

The eight-column newspaper is an innovation in Janesville. It has been adopted as a standard by the leading newspapers of the country.

"Pooh!" said Alexander once more, balancing himself with difficulty as the raft gave a swoop sideways. "Look out!" she said, expecting to see him pitch into the sea. "You say 'Look out' when I don't need it—regarding my balance—'longer to 'look out'!" "Porgive me for trying to warn you."

"That's all right!"

"Next time you can go overboard!"

"Oh, no, I stay here! That you do not give me the slip."

The lady made a gesture. Then she thought deeply.

"Did you save my life?"

"I hauled you from the water."

"How did you happen to see me?"

"I climbed up on deck, to wait and watch you. Every one got off in life boats. Every one is saved. I wonder why you do not come? The boat is going."

"You forgot to look me?"

"Of course we must not part."

"I think I understand! Go on! You could not bear that we should part—and then?"

"The fog came down. I call out to the life boats but no answer. Every one is saved but you and me! You have not left. I was sure."

"You said that before."

"I look for you. I do not find you. I search for you. The ship goes down, and then—the fog seemed to have got into Alexander's throat—"I bump into you, in the water."

"Yes?"

"The lady's voice involuntarily grew a little softer."

"I am very glad!"

"Were you?" said the lady with sudden curiosity.

"You bet. I couldn't let you go!"

With a grin in which cupidry and cunning mingled.

"You are alluding to mercenary reasons."

"Does that mean money?"

"It does. So it wasn't me you were saving."

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Don't Be Misled

Janeville Citizens Should Read and Heed This Advice.

Kidney trouble is dangerous and often fatal.

Don't experiment with something new and untried.

Use a tested kidney remedy.

assured him with a silvery laugh, somewhat forced. Don't worry! You won't have to carry me! I'll rest a bit, though, and then it will be quite all right, I am sure."

"I look and see."

"No, no! I know you should, of course, be kneeling at my feet, and all that, but it is quite unnecessary."

"Nonsense talk!"

"Let me see."

"The decline! There's no movie picture man near."

"I see, anyway," said Alexander. And did it was useless to resist. He untied her shoe—not ungentle—and removed it.

"Take off your stockings!" he next commanded, and she obeyed. Perhaps she was rather apprehensive just what would happen if she didn't. "You have three, four, five servants?"

"Quite that number, my sweet Alexander!"

"For why? You do what I say!"

"—I suppose I must."

"Of course! I heard up the ankle-knife skillfully. His fingers weren't half so rough as she had expected. Also, she noted with a certain relief, the bandanna had just been laundered."

The lady was past shivering. Horse-doe, sheep-doe!"

"The lady almost shrieked. "Oh, Alexander, you will be the death of me!"

"For why?" queried Alexander.

"Why you laugh? I know it is no laughing matter."

"Unless you think it funny, because you—she paused—intend to cheat me? You think how my face look when you say 'Kidney'?"

"You have three, four, five servants?"

"Quite that number, my sweet Alexander!"

"Perhaps you say that to them?"

"You wrong me! Such lack of confidence in a wife, is totally unbecoming. You should have faith in me—believe!"

Alexander tapped his chest. "No look out for myself, Y. which one?"

"Then all is well," said the lady. "Or as well as could be for two people marooned on a barren coast! Without food or drink! Which reminds me, I am very hungry. Eying the sausage, you couldn't by any chance rub a magical lamp, Alexander, and procure for me a broiled chicken?"

"No chicken!" said Alexander.

"Something better!" said Alexander.

"How perfectly delightful!" said the lady.

"Me grab him, before leaving ship!" said Alexander proudly. "No steering sausage!" Contemptuously. "Me grab him, in first-class place! No one to keep me out!" A moment he eyed her with rising resentment. "That nice trick of yours, shoving me in steering!"

"Why speak of the past?" Quickly. "Are not our present perplexities sufficient? Perhaps it is quite likely!"

"Nice trick!" muttered Alexander, not disposed to forget the past as readily as the lady was. "May I take him back?" Eying the sausage which he had placed at the lady's side.

"Say not so! Would you starve me? If you did you could not collect the reward."

This argument seemed to carry weight. Alexander hesitated. "Please forgive me," said the lady. "It is not the privilege of a strong man to force the weak. And you are so strong! Did I not feel it when you towed me ashore on the raft? How your mighty arms cleft the waves! How I rejoiced in the spectacle of the man who is a titan of the deep! Jove, come down!"

Alexander blinked. The lady's words would have staggered any mere man. But having blinked, Alexander quickly recovered himself. If her blandishments had been almost lost upon him, that practical remark concerning the reward had not been without effect.

"Eat away," he said. "My good husband, you bet!"

"It's nice to be so well-satisfied with yourself, isn't it?" said the lady. "But what a perfectly charming sausage!"

"Not bad," disagreed Alexander. "Genuinely good and bona-fide truffles!"

"Yes! I swiped it, first-class place!"

"A high-bred, patrician sausage!" ruminated the lady.

Alexander took from his trousers' pocket, a small jar. "Marmalade," he said.

"How perfectly delightful! Why, you've secured just what a slight shop! Have you anything else concealed on your person?"

"No time to get more!"

"Well, I'll spread the marmalade on my bread. Meanyhills, you might walk along and try to find out where we are. And by the time you return I'm sure the ankle will be quite respectable!"

For once, Alexander seemed to find the lady's words sensible. At any rate he did not controvert her; he even went further. Abruptly turning, he glanced for her, Alexander walked away.

The lady watched him disappear around a bend. Suddenly she ceased eating.

"How funny!"

"She looked around her. "That I did not notice before!"

Then she began to laugh. "I suppose I was so confused and preoccupied!"

"One would be!"

She put down the sausage.

"This is, positively, the best evening of my life! I've just had a slight opening in the foot of the cliff, near by. 'The Witch's Eye!' she observed. "That is it—indubitably! And it was looking at me all the time! Probably it was the witch's magic that caused me to slip!"

The lady got up, abandoning the remains of the patrician sausage and the marmalade on the shelf of rock. She came to Alexander's face, when he comes and finds me gone!" she murmured. "Oh this is as good as hare-and-hounds. He has me; he has me not!"

The lady walked to the crevice, or "Eye." She limped slightly but was in the best of spirits. Beyond, the opening fringed with dark bushes, she opened and farther along there was a gully. A path led to the top.

"Oh, Alexander, I can just see you!" gurgled the lady, as she started up the path, carrying one shoe in her hand.

At the top of the gully which she reached, the path led across a broad meadow, and beyond, at the verge of a park, a noble dwelling arose, a long, low, white, two-story house, with a gabled roof. The lady, pausing at the gate, poised on one foot, gazed with pleased interest upon the stately and charming place.

"The lady's odd way to come home!" she thought.

CHAPTER VI
The "Witch's Eye"

"Is there anything, man?"

Alexander stepped from the little lodge as the lady found herself thus strangely and unexpectedly entering her own estate, after a prolonged and somewhat enforced absence from home.

"Nothing special, thank you, James!"

"Good heavens! Is it really your ladyship?"

"I believe so," said the lady, hobbling down the steps. "Do not let your surprise overcome you, James!"

James strove to repress into the impassive model servant.

"Yes, I just landed," observed the lady.

"Quite so, your ladyship! At Folkstone, perhaps?"

"No, James!" But her ladyship offered no further information, and James trotted along by her side, fairly bursting with curiosity. The lady divined and smiled. She rather enjoyed the situation. She wouldn't have minded coming home like that for a great deal.

"Good morning, Pelton," she said to the butler, at the front door. "Or is it afternoon?" Pelton nearly fell over as the lady entered her ancestral hall. "The same old place!" she said. "Well, have to shift those suits of armor, Pelton. They do look so tired, always standing in the same place! Kindly see that it is done. Pelton managed to ejaculate, his eyes sticking out like those of an excited frog. "So glad to see your ladyship, once more."

"Yes, I understand!" languidly.

"Your ladyship's luggage?" Pelton was just about to stammer, saying, not without he, or, at the shoe her ladyship was carrying in her hand. So inconvenient to be bothered with luggage, your ladyship!"

Dinner Stories

"You always have that same waiters in the restaurant, don't you?" said the business man.

"Always," replied his friend. "She's very careful to bring me clean food."

"How do you know?"

"She today I saw her brushing the dust off my mustard pie with her apron."

Admiral Bradley Fiske was talking in New York about a naval critic. "This naval critic," he said, "reminds me of Swetoon."

"What struck Swetoon?" a man asked at the club. "He failed in medicine, he failed in the law and he's moved into a $2,500 flat in Riverside drive."

"Well, you see," said another man. "Swetoon has failed to write magazine articles on 'Why Men Fail,' and he's made a mighty good thing of it. Qualified, you know."

Senator Capper of Kansas was talking about his conversion to the league of nations idea.

"The man who sees no good in the league of nations," he said, "must be a freak."

Senator Capper smiled.

"Such a man," he added, "would be afraid of having a sunny disposition for fear it might give him freckles."

"Does your husband offer any encouragement to you in your uplift work?"

"None, except every time I mention it he goes up in the air."

"What became of Wombat, the most popular man in our class?"

"He's not so popular today. He's an umpire now."

Orfordville News

[By Gazette Correspondent.]

Orfordville, Sept. 9.—The peat beds on the marsh east of the village have been on fire for several weeks and those who have visited the scene say that at points they have been burned to the depth of 10 or 12 feet. That in some cases there is a layer of dirt left 10 or 12 inches thick which bridges over one of these deep chasms and makes it dangerous for either man or beast.

The Burden people have received several cartloads of 12 inch tiling with which they expect to extend the sewer from the plant. The plan is to lay from the present outlet to the big ditch on the marsh. A large power machine that will be used in laying it, arrived Tuesday.

Ernest Vaughn is moving into the house recently vacated by Mrs. Faber. Ralph Keithley, who recently purchased the house occupied by Vaughn will move into it. Sigurd Paulson lay from the house vacated by Keithley and Charles Taylor, after making some changes and improvements will move into the house where the Paulsons lived.

It is said that the L. E. Lund has decided to move to Madison and has purchased a residence there.

E. D. Bullard and a force of men are sampling his packing of tobacco at the Onsgard and Peterson warehouse.

A live poultry car was on the local siding Tuesday and large quantities of live birds were received during the day.

GAVE LIFE FOR HER PEOPLE

Pretty Legend Concerning Maiden Worthy to Be Known as Indian Joan of Arc.

In the great northwestern country, between the mighty Rockies and the beautiful Cascades, are the mountains called the Huckleberry range. They spread their arms comfortably about the many small mining towns of Washington. A soldierly array of pines and tamarack keep watch over all the inhabitants of Huckleberry range—the rough farmers, rugged miners and the few native redskins still left.

A large tribe of Indians once lived in these mountains, from the heights of which one can look far over the blue haze of Idaho, view the gleaming wide ribbon of the Columbia river, or behold the white tips of the Canadian Rockies.

A tale is told by the folk of Huckleberry range about Camak, the fairest maid of this ancient Indian tribe. During one of the many forest fires of the region, when the entire range seemed threatened with destruction, this Indian Joan of Arc gathered in her arms some little pink and white flowers and disappeared down the winding trail.

She went to the very edge of the fire where the dried grasses hissed and sizzled with the flames and the blazing pines stretched out scorching fingers toward her and the dainty peace offering. Then—the legend says—the Great Spirit was appeased and sheets of rain hid the brave Indian maid from the view of her people.

Never more was Camak seen by her tribe, but every spring since then the strange little pink and white flowers have covered the wide mountains of Huckleberry range. In honor of the Indian girl the blossom is called the Camak flower.

OLDEST AND BEST BLOOD PURIFIER

Time Makes No Mistakes.

We have never claimed that S. S. S. was a medicine to work wonders, nor one that would cure every physical ailment or disorder. More than fifty years ago it was placed on the market and recommended as a blood purifier, and today, after a long and successful career, and when its use has become almost universal, only the same honest claim is made for it—that it will relieve those diseases and disorders arising from an impoverished condition of the blood. Time makes no mistakes, and the very best recommendation of S. S. S. is the fact that it has stood a long test and is now more generally used than ever before, and has the confidence, we believe of a greater number of people than any other blood medicine.

The blood is the most vital force of life; every organ, nerve, muscle, tissue and sinew of the body is dependent on it for nourishment and strength, and as it circulates through the system, pure and rich, it furnishes these different members the healthful properties needed to preserve them and enable them to perform their various duties. So long as the blood remains free from infection we are apt to escape disease, but any impurity, humor or poison acts injuriously on the system and affects the general health.

Postular eruptions, pimples, rashes, and the various skin affections, show that the blood is in a feverish condition as a result of some humor, or the presence of an irritating, fiery acid.

Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and ulcers, Scrofula and similar blood disorders will continue to grow worse as long as the cause remains. A disordered condition of the blood may come from various causes, such as a sluggish condition of the system, imperfect bowel and kidney action, indigestion, etc.; but whatever the cause the blood must be purified before the body can be healthy.

S. S. S. is a natural blood purifier and tonic. It is made entirely of the harmless juices and extracts of roots, herbs and barks of recognized medicinal value, and being free from all harmful minerals is an absolutely safe medicine for young or old. S. S. S. goes into the circulation. It freshens and enriches the blood and will do for you what it has done for thousands of others. S. S. S. is the most reliable and at the same time a most pleasant acting medicine for those whose blood has become impoverished and needs building up.

A course of S. S. S. will prove to you its great efficacy, as it has in numerous other cases who have been reported to us by grateful patients.

Do not continue to suffer because of wrong treatment, but go to your drug store and commence taking S. S. S. today.

Also write fully to our head physician, who will give you full instructions about your own case.

Sworn Statement of the Composition of the FORMULA of Nuxated Iron

It is conservatively estimated that this remarkable formula is now being used by over three million people annually. Among those who have used and strongly endorse it as many physicians who have been connected with the best hospitals and medical societies, former United States Senator and Vice-Presidential nominee, Chas. A. Towne, of Minnesota; U. S. Commissioner of Immigration, Hon. Anthony Cammerlin; Judge Adkins of the United States Court of Claims at Washington; Wm. L. Chambers, Commissioner of the United States Board of Medication and Conciliation at Washington, and former Health Commissioner Wm. R. Kerr, of Chicago.

Newspapers everywhere are invited to copy this statement for the benefit of their readers. It is asserted that physicians make a record of it and keep it in their offices so that they may intelligently answer questions of patients concerning it. Everybody is advised to cut it out and keep it. A copy of the actual sworn statement will be sent to any one who desires it. It is as follows: Iron Peptonate (Special Specific Standard) Quality given below. Sodium Glycophosphate U. S. P. (Monosodium). Calcium Glycophosphate U. S. P. (Monosodium). P. E. Nux Vomica U. S. P. (Monosodium). S. S. P. Oil Cassia Cinnamon Precip. U. S. P. Carbonates Precip. U. S. P.

Each dose of two tablets of Nuxated Iron contains one and one-half grains of organic iron in the form of iron peptonate and sodium glycophosphate, which in our opinion possesses superior qualities to any other known form of iron. By using other make of Iron Peptonate we could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost to us, and by using metallic iron we could have accomplished the same thing at less than one-twelfth the cost; but by so doing we must have most certainly impaired their therapeutic efficacy. Glycophosphate used in Nuxated Iron is one of the most expensive tonic ingredients known. It is especially recommended to build up the nervous force and thereby increase brain power, as glycophosphates are said to contain phosphorus in that particular state so similar to that in which it is found in the nerve and brain cells of men.

As will be seen from the above, two important ingredients of Nuxated Iron (Iron Peptonate and Glycophosphates) are very expensive products as compared with most other tonics.

Under such circumstances the temptation to adulteration and substitution by unscrupulous persons, is very great and the public is hereby warned to be careful and see every bottle is plainly labeled Nuxated Iron by the The Health Laboratories, Paris, London and Detroit, U. S. A., as this is the only genuine article. If you have taken other forms of iron without success, this does not prove Nuxated Iron will not help you.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE—Nuxated Iron is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, and does not blacken, nor upset the stomach. Nuxated Iron is not recommended for use in case of acute illness, but only as a tonic, strength and blood builder. (In case of illness always consult your family physician and be guided by his advice.) If in doubt as to whether or not you need a tonic, ask your doctor, as we do not wish to sell you Nuxated Iron if you do not require it. If you are healthy and it does not help you, notify us and we will return your money. It is sold by all druggists.

Is It Seam Ball Instead of Shiner That Makes Cicotte Great Hurler?

By N. E. BROWN

One contest in the coming series may go down in history as "The Battle of the Shiner Ball."
For if Eddie Cicotte of the Chicago White Sox and young Hod Eller, of the Cincinnati Reds clash in the big show the two leading exponents of the forthcoming which would give the umpires the right to bar the delivery Cicotte used.

The most plausible solution I have heard concerning Cicotte's method of fixing the ball—if he does fix it—is that the hurler raises the cover slightly from the body of the ball along the seam for a distance of an inch or

Gray and one or two other club owners, no one has collected enough evidence against the delivery to obtain an injunction against its use.
With it, and a goodly amount of other stuff, Eller has been one of Moran's pitching aces. Eller broke into the limelight early this season by hurling a no-hit game.

mystery shoot will be pitting their skill against each other.
A bitter fight has been waged against Cicotte's peculiar delivery ever since he took on a new lease on life and jumped into the ranks of the league's hurlers. No one has decided definitely what Eddie uses on the ball, or how it is doctored. This is a secret known only to Cicotte—and probably Chic Gandil.
Cicotte, himself, does not admit that he uses any foreign substance or any trick to make the ball more effective—other than the good old elbow grease and the other ordinary assets of a pitcher. He pointed out, in a recent interview, that there was no reason to suspect a veteran hurler of using means bordering on the illegal to keep his effectiveness when that pitcher, in question was simply living a simple, clean life and devoting himself more studiously than ever to keeping control and his usual efficiency.

But there are half a dozen American league managers and a hundred players who will tell you that there is something "wrong" with the ball after Cicotte has thrown it half a dozen times. It has been said that Eddie uses paraffine to make a smooth spot on the horsehide and gets a terrific break on the ball by gripping this shiny, smooth spot just so.

Many Names for It
Some have dubbed his delivery the "hoorific ball," claiming he uses licorice to get the smooth spot. This claim is not born out by the ball, which does not show a brown spot which licorice would make. Players, managers and umpires—at the request of the opposition team—have looked for evidence of resin and other substances. Balls which Cicotte has pitched have been sent to Ben Johnson. But no legislation has been

Life of Candle Flame.
Laboratory experiments conducted of late have shown that a candle flame will become extinguished when the oxygen content of the atmosphere in which it is burning falls to about 15 per cent. Sulphur stops burning in all but 18.5 per cent of the oxygen in an enclosed space has been exhausted. The case of charcoal, however, is not so notable. Combustion continues until only 9 per cent of the oxygen remains.

CHAMPION WALKER PAYS CITY A VISIT

Dan O'Leary, the 79 year old walking champion, strolled into the Gazette office yesterday afternoon for a visit with friends before starting on a walk to Beloit. "I was not in a hurry today so I took the train from Milwaukee to Janesville," Mr. O'Leary said.

Mr. O'Leary said that he was anxious to return to Chicago, as he was preparing for a walk to all of the state capitals in the United States. "I am going to start the last week of October and I figure it will take three years to complete the trip," he said. Mr. O'Leary's last walk to Janesville yesterday was the second in less than a year. Hearing of the industrial boom going on here he decided yesterday afternoon to stroll down to the Samson plant and look the building over.

"I am over 79 years of age and willing at any time to wager from $1,000 to $5,000 that I can walk 110 miles to any other person's, my age, 100 miles.
Accompanying O'Leary in his 14-mile hike to Beloit this afternoon were two members of the Wingfoot Walking club, Charles Robbes and James Jameson, both of Milwaukee. O'Leary has challenged the famous cross-country pedestrian, Edward Payson Weston, to watch, agreeing to walk 110 miles to Payson's 100 miles for a purse of $1,000.

SPORT SNAP-SHOTS

BY JACK KEENE.

Somewhere, somehow, under a broiling summer sun, Ferdinand Schupp has found again the effectiveness which slipped from him more than a year ago. The strength that he used know has seeped back into his sinewy left arm, and control, a year ago, he has adhered strictly to the truth in discussing his case. Last year he was rather pessimistic and he began to believe he never would recover the use of his pitching arm, but during an improvement in the condition of the arm having been brought about, he became hopeful. He was, however, always very conservative in his expressions concerning the progress he was making. Last year it was: "I don't know; looks as if the old soup bone never will come around." This year it was: "Feels better. It may be some good yet."

Recently he literally smiled all over his face when asked how he felt. "I'm right," he said. "There isn't a doubt now. The warm sun in St. Louis or something has put me back in shape. Never no, not even in 1916 and 1917, when I was going pretty good, did my arm feel better than it does right now. There isn't a pain left in it. I've got as much stuff as I ever had and more important anything else, I can control the record of the game pitch Schupp in Boston recently ten bear out his contention that the second game of a double the kid allowed seven scattered and a solitary run, issued thru and registered eight strikeouts performance compares favorably say he turned out when he was top of his career.

"I didn't know I was going that game until the first game over and most of the time I was loading around on the bench Branch Rickey told me I was to work the second game. I had out and started to warm up, I hadn't pitched more than the four before I realized that my was in wonderful shape and I was ready to start.
"Because I have been wild in my of my starts for the past year or the Braves figured that it would pay to wait me out. Four of the eleven I fanned took the third strike and on each of the four I curved a ball right over the plate for the third strike."
Schupp appears to be very well satisfied with his present berth. "Of course I don't like to leave the Giants," he said. "Nobody does, guess, but I must say that I am content now. Everybody, including the St. Louis fans, has treated me fine and haven't a thing to worry me. Have just gone ahead and got back shape, and I am sure that Rickey won't be disappointed in me."

The Romance of Successful Women

Constance Maybridge was an orphan living in a small city in the middle west. She supported herself by acting as stenographer for Mr. Goldman, one of the largest real estate dealers there, who was also the owner of the only motion picture show in the town. Being like most young girls, she liked the "movies" and being in Mr. Goldman's employ she learned a great deal about the producing end of the business.

The first thing Constance did was to clean up.

This one picture theater of which the town boasted was an old madover store, a regular hole in the wall, called Dreamland. The seats were just plain hard benches painted red with no arm rests and often so high from the floor that there was no foot rest either. It had never been a paying proposition. Many were the men who had tried to make money with it. Mr. Goldman was just about to give up. He was going to sell the pictures and rent the place for a store.

Now since Constance liked the "movies" she decided that the town simply had to have at least one, and so she approached Mr. Goldman with a plan. She asked him if he would be willing to help her start one. She had learned a great deal about bookkeeping; she was a fan herself and went often enough to know what the people liked, and besides that she was sure that a city of the size of theirs ought to be able to support not only one but two or three such neighborhood theaters. Mr. Goldman was not at all sure, but he decided he had lost enough money on "that old lemon," as he called the place.

Constance, however, was not easily discouraged, and she asked him if he would be willing to give her the use of the theater as his share towards the forming of a company if she could get enough other business men to forward some real money. Mr. Goldman was not at all sure, but he decided he had lost enough money on "that old lemon," as he called the place.

The first thing Constance did was to clean up Dreamland. She had it redecorated and refitted throughout and when she finished there was an attractive though small lobby furnished in wicker and gay cretonnes. The inside of the theater was finished in shades of light tan, a cheery air which had never been present before. Before the opening night there was not a person in the city who did not know that Dreamland was to open a new picture theater and with a popular new picture. Constance had placards in every store window in the city and not only that but she had an added attraction, a gypsy dance by some of the popular young girls of the town. The picture was the story of a gypsy girl and Constance had arranged the gypsy dance as a titling attraction for the picture. Of course, the first night was a huge success.

What Constance did to keep the people coming would fill a book. She introduced children's matinees where were admitted free; she had contests for deciding the most popular actor and actress; she often introduced interesting features like the "picture and play" and always local talent took part in those specialties, and she always advertised in the local paper and with the most change in the vicinity. From the very first night her theater was a success.

After the Dreamland had run for two years Constance thought that the city ought to have a larger and better theater, and so she City Amusement company bought through its president, Mr. Goldman, a large old building which had been a storage company, and made it over into a first-class picture theater. Constance Maybridge became the manager of the new theater also. She followed practically the same plan with the new show as she had with the old one, only on a larger scale. She introduced all of the newest ideas which she heard or read about, one being a nursery room where mothers might leave their babies while they went in to see the pictures.

After the new theater opened Constance had to leave her position as secretary to Mr. Goldman, for her two theaters took all of her time. When she started working for Mr. Goldman eight years before she had earned $10 a week. After she had been in the motion picture business two years she was earning $85 a week, besides having stock in the City Amusement company.

Constance thought that if the city could support two picture shows it ought to be able to support a legitimate theater, and so she urged the amusement company to build a regular theater that would accommodate stock companies, vaudeville artists or even opera. The company was not ready to do this as it had been to start the second theater. Their town had never had a real show because it was so near a large metropolitan city that everybody who went to the theater merely took the trolley in.

It took Constance a year to convince the men that the town wanted and needed a regular theater, but finally the theater was built, and today it is making as much money as either of the two picture houses. Constance Maybridge now has the distinction of being one of the first women exhibitors in the country, the only one in her section of the country, and she is manager and part owner of the only three amusement houses in her town. She is doing a man's job, but it seems to her that the feminine touch which she gave her theaters which made them popular from the beginning. She claims that there is no need for any picture show being "dirty," and that a bit of paint and cretonne will work wonders not only in the theater but in the box office receipts also.

SMOCKS ONCE REGARDED AS CURIOUS NOW FIND PLACE IN EVERYBODY'S WARDROBE

And now enters the smock—that is, it is entering everybody's wardrobe. At first this curious had been followed only by those of artistic or gardening temperament or those who loved the most advanced and different sort of thing. The smock has undergone so many modifications from its first appearance, as the typical peasant garment, which it really is, that it is in point of fact hardly recognizable. Its name, too, has changed, for in the beginning it was just a smock, now it is known as the "overblouse" and the "Cossack coat."

The gardening period in our recent lives is believed to be responsible for the acceptance of this type of blouse. The smock is so comfortable with its loose free lines that it became at once just the sort of thing needed for many kinds of work.

Smocks have come to be thought of as the very prettiest of informal garments. They are much prettier than the bungalow or over-all aprons elected by a most decisive majority.

By common consent he was chosen by the national convention and to deliver the "keynote" address, outlining the policies of the reorganized party. His success as a speaker and guide in the famous gathering added to the high reputation which already it was his good fortune to possess.

Decision upon his part still is to be made public. His senatorial term expires in 1921, which means that the election of his successor must take place next year. It generally is believed that if he makes known his desire to be presented for the presidency by his native state no other Ohio candidate will be regarded. Pressure for his election is felt from many quarters, for his general development and lack of radical extremes. His position at Washington has been that of a conservative, a mediator, rather than a promoter, and in fact rather than idealism. His presence, his comparative youth and his eloquence equip him strongly.

Jefferson's Wisdom. Thomas Jefferson said: "I have often thought that if heaven had given me a choice of my position and calling, it should have been a rich spot of earth, well watered, and near a good market. No occupation is so delightful to me as the culture of the earth."

Shop in the Gazette before you shop in the stores.

Running a farm without a workshop is like going fishing without a hook. A good convenient little shop built of "Old Faithful" HEMLOCK costs little and will usually pay for itself in a short time in repair money saved.

We shall take pleasure in supplying you free with a set of real FULL SIZE WORKING PLANS for the neatest little shop you ever saw (or any of 26 other buildings if you wish). That makes it easy enough and you'd better do it NOW, before the price rise, due to the big demand, strikes town. So drop in or phone.

THE WISHING PLANE

After Sir Sprig had finished telling the story of Sergeant Yost Signor Angelo invited everyone to take a ride in his auto. The two guides, Lane and Balpho, said they would have to return home, so they said good-bye to everyone, promising to go up the mountains with the children again before Jack and Jane left Switzerland. The other folks and Jack and Jane and Bob—seated themselves in the auto.

The children had seen many autos when Signor Angelo started the car. It hummed along so quietly that Jack had to listen closely to hear the engine. But when it came to the first steep hill and Signor Angelo turned on more power the engine fairly roared and the car shot up the hill. "The first time I saw a car like this," said Signor Angelo, "I was in Lucerne, one of the little mountain cities of the little mountain country. He seemed to know all about the city, too, and pointed out the interesting places in it and told the children all about each place along the edge of the lake beside which the city was built."

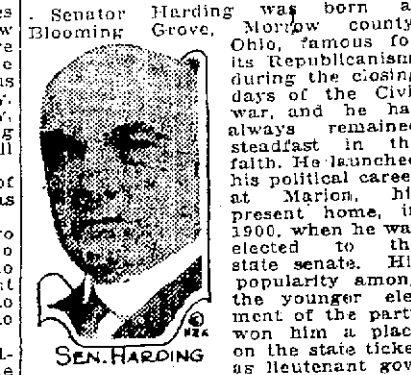

"Lucerne might now belong to Austria and there might have been no Switzerland but for a little boy who slipped down to this lake one night many hundreds of years ago to bathe," said Signor Angelo as the auto ran along the lake shore. "The children saw that the children were waiting for him to tell them all about the boy, so he said: 'Five or six hundred years ago Austria was trying to take possession of Switzerland. Part of their plan, at one time, was to capture Lucerne and, having taken the city and made prisoners of all the men in it, capture the district around it. 'Well, one night just at that time a little boy named Peter, tired from his day's work in the fields, went down to the shore of the lake near the city to swim and wash himself. After he had swum about for a long time he drifted and laid down on the beach. In a little while he heard some men walking through the woods back of him. They were talking and he could tell that they were planning to capture the city. He could tell, too, by their voices that they were Austrians. So he determined to follow them.'"

WHO'S WHO in the Daily News

SENATOR HARDING.

The name of Senator Harding of Ohio has been mentioned often of late as being high on the list of possible Republican candidates for president in 1920.

Senator Harding was born at Blooming Grove, Morrow county, Ohio, famous for its Republicanism. He was a student during the closing days of the Civil war, and he has always remained a faithful Union man. He launched his political career at Marion, his present home, in 1890, when he was elected to the state senate. His popularity among the younger element of the party won him a place on the state ticket as lieutenant governor in 1903, and he was renominated in 1905. It was in 1912 that opportunity presented itself to Harding, and he grasped it bravely after his defeat for the governorship, two years before, when Judge Harmon won by 100,000 majority. Facing the Roosevelt schismatics, Harding took up the cause of President William H. Taft, when he placed in nomination in the national convention at Chicago. His fearless manner in the face of strong opposition winning for him an admiration that has continued to this day among the leaders of the party in the nation. Two years later Harding had the vision to see that the Democratic cause in Ohio was about to receive a setback. It was also his judgment, which was fortified amply by personal acquaintance, that if Joseph Benson Forsaker were renominated to be senator the favorable result might be changed. After making this clear to the old leader's friends, he entered the primary contest and was nominated and

The Vogue of Contentment

EMMY HARDINGS, and four careless boys. I guess she crimped the edges of it. She's sitting some place where the fourth red raspberry pie, picked it with a fork and she was in the oven to bake. Then she went back to the kneading board and gathered up the remnant of pie crust dough, squeezing it into a little round ball. There was enough to make a tart and Ozias loved tarts. Customarily and natural instinct urged her to make the tart. But suddenly, with an angry movement, she swung back the screen door and flung the dough as far as she could. It landed among the current bushes. She gulped down a sob. "I don't care," she said aloud. "I won't do any more than I have to after this. It doesn't pay."

Far off, but directly opposite her kitchen door, she saw a steep roof of many angles rising among the trees. "She doesn't have to make pies on a hot morning," Emmy thought wildly. "She isn't baking herself through and through with heat to feed a selfish man alone with a little looting dog in her lap and Georgiana, regal in her widow's black. "She never saw me," thought Emmy, bitterly. "She didn't want to. Oh, I know she feels above me, and once she picked berries and sold them to get hair ribbons like mine."

But that was long ago. Since then Georgiana had grown into a beauty and captivated a rich man. She had turned her back on the way she had come and the friends who had accompanied her. Since then also Emmy had married her heart's choice and borne him four black-eyed boys, who ate the pies she baked without concern for the effort it cost her. Emmy worked hard and was poor; her looks had grown rusty and she didn't have a new hat once in two years. Somehow she had begun to feel that Ozias and the boys were all to blame. Ozias ought to be able to make more money with the help she gave him.

There was a sudden sound of knocking at the screen door and Emmy lifted her head dazedly. The room was full of smoke and through it she saw a young, sharp-eyed man in blue who looked in at her curiously.

"I beg your pardon," he said. "I was sent to find Mrs. Hardings and to give her this."

He held out an unopened note. Emmy went forward and took it. The young man choked and stepped back from the door. Emmy opened the note and read: "My dear Emmy, I've just learned that you are Mrs. Ozias Hardings and you live within sight of my house. Do for old time's sake, come and spend the day with me. I'm dying of loneliness. Don't fail me."

"GEORGIANA CASS."

The fivered chauffeur smiled politely through the smoke. "Mrs. Cass said I was to fetch you."

"I'll go," said Emmy. "I'll be ready in ten minutes."

Without a look at the burning pies she ran out of the room.

Emmy's feelings were not of the weathercock order. Georgiana had explained; Georgiana wanted her. She had a strong desire to see how Georgiana lived, but most of all she was offered an escape from her hot kitchen, her black pie and her own racking thoughts. She would go, and in the meantime Ozias and the boys should do what it would mean to have to do without the housekeeper.

Perhaps they would appreciate her when she returned.

She dressed hurriedly. Something seemed driving her shoulder blades. In reality it was her own unrest and dissatisfaction.

The chauffeur opened the car door for her as courteously as he had ever done for his mistress. Emmy's face and bearing earned her that. She sat down on the luxurious cushions, aware that her neighbors were peering at her wonderingly from the windows. Yet it was not triumph she felt so much as a grim desire to snatch something that she believed should have been hers by rights.

Georgiana was on the steps of the big house, waiting to receive her. She looked elegant and handsome, but her kiss was cordial. She led Emmy indoors while the little white dog pined at her swaying skirts.

"I've seen the time when she'd be glad that ribbon she's wearing," Emmy thought.

"I'll show you around first," Georgiana said; "then we'll have lunch and after that we'll talk."

After luncheon they sat on the broad piazza, where humming birds were vibrating about the porch boxes. Emmy rocked and rocked. She wished she had something for her hands to do. But Georgiana sat listlessly quiet.

"Don't you crochet or anything?" Emmy asked.

Georgiana smiled. "Dear, no. Why should I? All my lingerie comes ready trimmed from the shops. There's never anything for me to do save amuse myself. They say that's worse than work, and perhaps it is. I sometimes wish I had four rooms and had to cook for Togo and myself." She lifted the dog to her knee. "He's dreadfully old. See, his eyes are flimsy. I suppose he can live forever, but I don't know what I should do without him when he dies."

Emmy sat staring at her in astonishment. She looked so ineffectual some way sitting there with her hand on the dog's silky white coat. "I never thought much of dogs," Emmy blurted out.

Georgiana sighed. "You would if you had a little dog like this and he was all you had to love, or that you could depend upon to love you. You have a husband and sons, Emmy, and I suppose that sounds odd to you. But you see, I'm all alone in the world and always shall be till the day I die."

"You could marry again," Emmy began.

Georgiana moved her shoulders. "Not after the way Fred tied up my money. And I think a good deal of my money. That's the penalty you pay for having had it. You can't live without it. Sometimes I think it has been more of a curse than a blessing to me. You see, I'd never have married Fred if he hadn't been rich. There was somebody else. She passed. 'Oh, yawn! That's all she goes. Tell me about yourself, Emmy.'"

And Emmy told her, warming gradually to her subject, how Dick was working his way through college; how Oliver was bound to be valedictorian of

MILTON JUNCTION TO IMPROVE DEPOT

Milton Junction, which has long been noted for its small depot, is to have new joint station facilities. Either a new station is to be built or the present one is to be entirely remodeled and enlarged.

This is the substance of an order issued by the railroad commission which has found station facilities there to be entirely inadequate. Both the Northwestern and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul lines are ordered to jointly provide reasonable facilities which shall contain separate waiting rooms for men and women and suitable inside sanitary toilets.

The companies are given until December 1, 1920, to make the improvements.

Lieut. Col. J. C. Porter, R. A. F., is the designer of a huge triplane flying boat which may be the next aircraft to cross the Atlantic. Aerial experts have recently predicted that the machine of more than two planes will be the successful commercial craft of the future, a theory which Col. Porter has been advocating for years.

Milton Junction

[By Gazette Correspondent.]
Milton Junction, Sept. 9.—The barn and tobacco shed at the E. C. Luoke farm at Grass Lake burned to the ground Monday evening. The fire had gained headway before it was discovered. Mr. Luoke lost all the hay, grain and tobacco, a valuable horse and some pigs.

The fortnightly club was entertained at the first social of the year at the home of Mrs. W. E. Sowle Monday evening. Each member wore something to indicate a Mother Goose character. A supper was served at 6 o'clock.

The harvest festival will open today, bigger than ever, with merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fine free attractions and amusements for all, also an exhibit of farm products, cooking and fancy work.

Miss Laura Boot and Ezra Bingham, Fort Atkinson, were married in Rockford Saturday. They will make their home in Fort Atkinson.

F. W. Smith has moved into rooms in the Hayes block and Charles Bartz has moved into his house vacated by Mr. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Stone, Mrs. Osborne and Mrs. Helen Kerns attended the M. E. conference at Waukesha Sunday.

The railroad commission has given a decision on the depot question, ordering the St. Paul and Northwestern railroads to erect a modern station at Milton Junction.

Mr. Frank Bowers, Whitewater, spent a few days with Mrs. Sowle the first of the week.

Miss Ina Atoby left Tuesday for a visit with Milwaukee friends and to attend the state fair.

No Written Chinese Music.
Chinese music is not written. The words of some of the favorite songs have been preserved, but the music has been handed down from father to son for generations that go far back before the day of the troubadours. When music is played it is played according to the memory of the musician and his ideas of interpretation. A musician varies the performance as his best judgment dictates, and the strings, reeds or brass may break in at almost any time.

This Generation's Duty.
The breath is the life, and we cannot know too much about breathing. If the people of this generation will learn how to supply their lungs with pure oxygen and leave their bodies free from compression over the solar plexus life in the next generation will be prolonged many years and disease will be lessened to a great degree.

FULTON

[By Gazette Correspondent.]
Fulton, Sept. 9.—Oscar Ellifson, Chicago, spent Sunday at home.

Misses Stella Attlessey and Emma Berg were entertained by Mrs. William Wachlin, Jr., Friday.

School started Monday morning with Misses Florence Heagle, Gilman, in the upper department, and Emma Berg in the primary department, with an enrollment of over 40.

Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Murwin and family spent Sunday in Madison with their son, Herbert.

Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Pease spent Sunday afternoon in Madison.

Mrs. Peter Halvorsen, who has been in poor health for a long time, passed away Saturday. The funeral was held Sept. 9. She leaves one daughter, Florence, Mrs. Elmer Garey, Stebbinsville, two children having preceded her in death in her infancy. Mrs. Halvorsen had lived in or around Fulton for many years.

Charles White, Janesville, visited with his daughter, Mrs. Sue Tessen, the fore part of the week.

Harry Olson, who has recently moved to Fulton, bought from Mrs. George Murwin the blacksmith and wagon shops and lot on the corner. He expects to tear down the blacksmith and wagon shops and build a modern bungalow.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Pease drove to Fort Atkinson and Charley bluff last Sunday.

Miss Stella Attlessey is visiting in Stebbinsville.

Beauty of the Dawn.
It is at dawn that the world awakes, rested and refreshed from a night's sleep as a man awakes rested and refreshed from good slumber. The breath of the world is sweetest at dawn, its face is fairest then, its voice more musical and harmonious. The dust and the grime of the day have been brushed from it.

The First Silk.
The first silk was made 2600 B. C. by the wife of a Chinese emperor. Aristotle, in 350 B. C., first mentions silk among the Greeks. The manufacture of silk was carried on in Sicily in the twelfth century, later spreading to Italy, Spain and the south of France. It was not manufactured in England before 1804.

To Restore Tired Eyes.
If the eyes are very tired and one specially wishes them to be as bright as possible, it is quite helpful to lie down for half an hour with the eyes closed, and a folded handkerchief dipped in cold water, in which boracic acid powder is dissolved, laid across the forehead and eyes. This can be redipped as soon as the cloth is warm.

Whitewater News

[By Gazette Correspondent.]
Whitewater, Sept. 9.—The City Federation of Women's Clubs held its first meeting yesterday afternoon. Mrs. B. J. James, the new president, presided. H. S. Richards, Madison, state president of the Women's Federation, addressed the meeting on The Aim of the Work of a Club Woman. He gave a special of a Club Woman's work. The parent-teachers association was invited to join the federation. The names of the committees for the coming year were announced.

Lewis Willis, Chicago, gave a brief talk to the high school students yesterday morning. He spoke in part as follows: History has a new meaning since the war. The work now is building up democracy and popular government. People with fancy pedigrees spring from bandits, who tormented the common people and built an imperial government. The word Hohenzollern analyzed means tax taker who comes down from the castle heights. When our ancestors came from Europe they got rid of their class. The state church in Europe has been used to keep the aristocracy in power. That is why the bolsheviks turned the bishops upside down and thrashed the street with them.

In this country we are facing the problem of the high cost of living, and the control of corporations. God's system of taxation is wrong. God is good and has enough for all, if we avail ourselves of it. Tax land instead of the products of land, and you will take it out of the hands of the small farmer.

Miss Gertrude Witte is taking the nurse's training at the Milwaukee hospital.

Mrs. I. U. Wheeler is spending the week at the state fair.

FOOTVILLE
[By Gazette Correspondent.]
Footville, Sept. 9.—The Catholic Ladies' Aid will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Casey, Magnolia.

Henry Pepper, Ames, Iowa, is visiting relatives here alive.

Miss Clarke spent Sunday at her home in Madison.

Will Howell and family and Mrs. Tollefson spent Sunday with relatives in Madison.

L. J. Spencer was brought to his home Saturday from Mercy hospital and is getting along nicely.

Dr. S. W. Lacey, who has been ill during the past week, is reported on the gain.

Mrs. Charlie Fisher spent Sunday with her sister, Mrs. Hazel, near Beloit.

James Noble and daughter, Bernita, came up from Rockford to attend the convention, returning Sunday evening. Mrs. Bernita Campbell and daughter, Bernita, came from Ladysmith, accompanied them.

Bert Dunn, who has spent the past two weeks visiting friends in this locality, took his train Monday morning for Evansville, to spend the day with relatives in that city and planned to board the evening train for his home near Chicago.

Orion Shaw and wife of Beloit, attended services at the Christian church Sunday evening.

Farmers are unusually busy shedding tobacco and filling silos.

Many delegates from different cities were in attendance at the convention which closed Sunday evening.

Mr. Brill, a former local pastor of the M. E. church, passed away August 29, after an illness which lasted five years. His body was taken to Rockford for interment.

No Sunday service being held at the M. E. church, owing to the absence of Mr. White, who was attending the conference, many of the members motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Brown at Emerald Grove and spent the day. They carried with them many things to eat. A picnic dinner was served and for supper muskmelon and watermelon. Those who made up the party were E. W. Snyder and family, Jacob Wiggins, Mrs. John Spurr, Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mattice, Clyde Snyder and family, Mr. Miller and family, Mrs. and Mrs. Lebbe, Charles Whitmore, wife and sons, Donald and Howard, Mesdames Minnie and Etta Pepper, and Henry Pepper, Ames, Iowa.

Two Stoves are "One Too Many"

NO more need for a coal range for Winter and an Oil stove for Summer use. Two stoves is "one too many" for the DUPLEX ALCAZAR is two ranges in one and does more and better work than the two could or would.

In this wonderful stove two complete ranges are made into one, burning a combination of fuels either together, or singly; requiring no change or removal of parts.

If you want year-round kitchen comfort, better cooking results and decreased fuel bills, use the DUPLEX ALCAZAR. It is made in a variety of styles: in porcelain, steel and cast iron construction by a stove factory that makes Quality its watchword.

Let Us Demonstrate It To You.
